

91 NGOs FROM 47 COUNTRIES EXPRESS SUPPORT FOR COSTA RICA'S FORTHCOMING JOINT STATEMENT ON THE SOCIAL REINTEGRATION OF PERSONS RELEASED FROM DETENTION OR UNDER SUPERVISION

September 8, 2023

To Permanent Representatives of Member and Observer States of the United Nations (Geneva, Switzerland):

We, the undersigned non-governmental organizations (NGOs) representing every region of the world, write to express our strong support for the circulating Joint Statement led by Costa Rica to be presented at the 54th session of the United Nations Human Rights Council (The Council). This Joint Statement concerns the social reintegration of persons released from detention or under supervision. We strongly believe this is a human rights issue, and we ask your Government to sign on to the Joint Statement.

All States face the dual challenges of social reintegration and preventing recidivism; yet, post-release support falls disproportionately on NGOs and families. Today, there are more than 11.5 million people behind bars around the world – most of whom stand to be released and rejoin society. Specific groups of released prisoners, such as women, children, the LGBTQ community, ethnic or religious minorities, indigenous populations, and people with disabilities, mental health challenges, or drug dependency, face special barriers to successful reintegration that must be holistically addressed.

We applaud emerging practices by UN Member States to advance re-entry and post-release support. Effective practices, such as medical care handoffs, housing assistance, connection to employment, family reunification, victim-offender dialogue, and public awareness campaigns, have significant benefits not only for released prisoners, but for the sustainable development of communities overall. Conversely, failed reintegration undermines the human rights of released prisoners, their families, and the broader community.

Rule 90 of the Nelson Mandela Rules emphasizes that “the duty of society does not end with a prisoner’s release,” and the UN Common Position on Incarceration explains, “[e]ven the best prison-based rehabilitation progra[ms] will be undermined if former prisoners find themselves without any post-release support.” There is clear global consensus on the importance of post-release support, yet existing international human rights frameworks do not provide guidance to States on how to implement post-release social reintegration programs. While the UN Office on Drugs and Crime has undertaken complementary efforts on social reintegration as a crime prevention strategy, further work is needed to advance this issue as a matter of human rights.

As NGOs, we recognize that social reintegration requires a collective global, national, and local commitment to creating strategies, sharing effective practices, and fostering collaboration. We recognize the important role the Council can play in advancing a global consensus on this issue, while also guiding States on the implementation of effective practices that uphold the human rights and dignity of released prisoners.

We respectfully request your Government support Costa Rica's Joint Statement and support collaboration in developing an international approach for the social reintegration of persons released from detention or under supervision.

Thank you for your attention. Please reach out to Costa Rica Minister Counsellor Roberto Céspedes Gomez at +41 79 825 8705 on Whatsapp or rcespedes@rree.go.cr with any questions or to indicate your Government's interest in signing on to the Joint Statement.
